

Weyerhaeuser has marked the trees on the property line on the right hand side of the rifle range that will be removed in the next year or two

The backdrop at the archery range been filled in, new target faces installed and brush removed from the right hand side.

Thanks to a suggestion during orientation, containers were installed on the bow rests where archers can place arrows during a cold range.

Brush and a couple trees were removed from the gate to the road increasing visibility.

Most of these projects were completed with volunteer time only and others were completed on a frugal budget. The target improvements were funded with funds achieved from the sale of donated brass.

I began teaching my son how to shoot when he was two, starting with the basics of a BB rifle. My theory is that kids get into trouble because of curiosity—if you don't satisfy it, you're asking for big problems. If you inform them and carefully instruct them on safety when they're young, you avoid a lot of the trouble. My son has learned to respect weapons. I've always told him, if you want to use a gun, come get me.

There's nothing I like better than shooting.
